(54) Image forming apparatus, information processing apparatus and version check method

(57) An image forming apparatus is provided, in which the image forming apparatus includes an application for performing processes on image forming, and a system service for performing processes of a system side on the basis of a request by using an API from the application. The image forming apparatus further includes: a part for obtaining version information of APIs used by the application for the system service, and version information of APIs of the system service; and a part for comparing, API by API, versions of the APIs used by the application with versions of the APIs of the system service.
